Washington's Coat-of-Arms and his Signature

Now that the people of this country are universally celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Washington, we, the combined classes of 1932, in our endeavor to do our small part in offering homage to him, have decided to carry as far as possible throughout our yearbook, Caduceus, the colonial theme.

Warren Edward Potter

Every student and teacher who has been at Commerce during the past twenty years has probably come in contact, in one way or another, with Warren Edward Potter. This quiet, dignified, and unassuming member of the faculty has, for over a score of years, been vitally concerned with every interest of the school, and patricularly with athletics.

Rightfully did this tall, angular individual come by his interest in sports. He was born in the little village of Clarendon, among the rugged Vermont hills. He first attended school in that town and then completed his secondary school education at Rutland Classical Institute. There thirty years or more ago, our friend was renowned for athletics and was acclaimed the best all-around athlete in the State of Vermont. The sports in which he excelled were football, baseball, and track. His scholastic and athletic ability brought him a scholarship award to Dartmouth College, where had he gone, his name would doubtless have been listed with such Big Green stars as Jesse Hawley, Alton Marsters, Earl Thomson, and a host of others.

But these were war days. The stirring strains of martial music plus youth and patriotism proved stronger than the call to Dartmouth. When Company A, First Regiment, Vermont Volunteer Militia, entrained for further training and duty in Cuba and Porto Rico, the name of Warren E. Potter was on the roster.

Directly after the war he went to New York City for further study, and subsequently took a teaching position in Long Island College. During the ten years that he taught there, he was coach of all the athletic teams. At the same time he managed and played on the Brooklyn Athletic Association baseball team. This team won the championship of Brooklyn, and because of its success, Mr. Potter was offered a contract with the Brooklyn Major League team which we know as the Dodgers. Illness, however, forced him to refuse the offer, and he retired to a farm in Charlestown, New Hampshire.

Three years later, fully recuperated, he joined the faculty of the High School of Commerce. Here he has been a "good and faithful servant" in many activities. Until a few years ago, Mr. Potter assisted in the coaching of the Crimson baseball teams. Ever since Commerce was organized as a separate school, he has also been Faculty Manager of Athletics and Faculty Treasurer for all organizations. Now he is Faculty Treasurer of the General Organization. He has been for a long time chairman of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, a committee which ratifies awards to athletes and attempts to formulate the school's athletic policy.

Mr. Potter is a member of the Business Department and is at present teaching bookkeeping, although in the past he has taught a number of the various commercial subjects. He is also one of the mainstays of the Evening High School faculty.

The family home is still in Charlestown, New Hampshire. He is married and has four children, two of whom have completed courses at higher institutions of learning and have started following their father's profession. The other two are still in school.

Mr. Potter's interest in athletics is as deep and unflagging as ever. Probably this interest and his own prowess in sports account, in a large measure, for his popularity with the boys, of whom many have benefited by his two-fisted straight from-the-shoulder advice. Sportsman, friend, teacher, and adviser — Warren E. Potter, to whom the 1932 Caduceus is dedicated, is one of the most genuinely respected members of the faculty of the High School of Commerce.

AT last it had arrived, the great day: the day we were to start on our long journey, and what a journey it promised to be! Quickly I packed my junior high school report card in my bag and hurried off to the airport. As I came nearer the field, I could see the good old dirigible, the High School of Commerce, at its mooring. It was the same famous dirigible that had carried so many passengers safely to the Airport of Great Wisdom. We had often heard of it, but today was different, because we were going to fly over new and untried territory in quest of the Land of Industry and Integrity.

As I was the first to arrive, it was my duty to keep track of the voyage. But I was not there long before I was joined by another companion who had flown through the ninth grade with me. Pretty soon we were joined by other fellow flyers, until it seemed that it was impossible for the reception room to hold any more of us. This difficulty was, however, soon overcome when we were assigned to our different staterooms. We had much trouble in finding our rooms, and many qualms as to who our homeroom captains would be. But soon we were all in our different staterooms, and assured of a happy voyage.

We were naturally very enthusiastic, and asked many eager questions of our captains about the incidents of our voyage and its length. We were told that if we were persevering and diligent in our duties, we would easily reach our destination at the end of three years. So after our parents had met our commander and the officers of the dirigible of the High School of Commerce, at what is known as the Freshman Reception, they wished us a fond farewell, and at last we took off on the real Voyage of High School Life.

We were socially ambitious, and it did not take us long to get acquainted with our fellow passengers, nor to feel very much at home with our wonderful commander, Mr. Ellis, and with the pilots and captains. Our chief pilots, Miss Tierney and Miss Blakeman, soon organized us into the January Class of 1932. Immediately we chose some of our fellow-passengers to guide us. These were John Baird, President; Ludwig Rose, Vice-President; David Schaffer, Secretary; John Wells, Treasurer; and Sidney Spaner, Auditor. Those who were successful in our next election were Alfred Torff, President; Ralph Bergeron, Vice-President; Joseph Romito, Treasurer; and Helen Morrissey, Auditor. We were later in the year, very sorry to bid adieu to our president, Alfred Torff, when he left us because of ill health. We naturally had many good times on board. The first of these were our XB and XA socials. These were for us very gala affairs. Much credit must go to Miss Tierney for their success.

There were, of course, a few cases of airsickness, and many of us had hard work to keep down bookkeeping, stenography, and some other disagreeable dishes, but our captains assured us quietly but firmly that they were perfectly digestible. Moreover, we were helped in this task by various interludes of social activity. Our third and fourth great affairs were held very successfully in the next two semesters.

We noticed at the outset of the voyage that the land over which we flew at first was very barren, but as we traveled farther we noticed a gradual change. We were led to inquire of the Commander the significance of the situation, and he explained to us that the Voyage of High School Life was in reality to be over three different countries, though the three lands were so closely joined together that they seemed but one immense continent. He informed us further that we had just started to pass over the first and smallest of these, called Freshman Land. We soon flew over this land and almost before we knew it received our passports [in the form of report cards] to the next land.

During our trip through the Junior Country we were very sorry to bid good-bye to our Commander, Mr. Ellis, who had guided us so faithfully thus far. We were very anxious to meet our new Commander, Mr. Burt. We need not, however, have been anxious, because he proved to be a most worthy successor to our first commander.

Some of our classmates from time to time made records which were outstanding. Among them were John Wells, who won a medal for proficiency in the study of American history; Doris Peck, who proved to be an accomplished piano player; and some very talented dancers, especially Madeline Morrison, Joseph Maddaloni, and Antonio Marino.

At Christmas time we distinguished ourselves by giving a Christmas play, and followed the old tradition of inviting the people from the Home for Aged Women and Home for Aged Men. With the help of one of our chief pilots, Miss Blakeman, Jane Bremner, John Wells, John Baird, and William La Broad took us back in the play about Cotton Mather to the time of early New England days.

The largest and most important dance we have had so far is the XIIB Hop. We certainly enjoyed ourselves at this dance.

In our last and most important election the following candidates were successful: Ralph Bergeron, President; Morris Gordon, Vice-President; Doris Peck, Secretary; Joseph Romito, Treasurer; Madeline Morrison, Auditor.

It has been a marvelous trip and we have packed away many souvenirs from every air port, trying, however, to guard against the danger of excess baggage, and of taking unto ourselves any thing which would not be of use to us on the great Voyage of Real Life upon which we are soon to embark. We have withstood every gale bravely. We have not been wrecked upon the mountain of any task. The winds of our marks have blown to and fro; the storms of different problems have not discouraged us; the fogs of test questions have sometimes tried their worst to down us; but none of them have succeeded. We have paid the price of our passage with good hard work, and have been awarded passports to the different countries.

Now we look at the larger hemisphere of life outside school and feel that our experience has fitted us to withstand every storm, and overcome any barrier with no fear of failure. We, the Class of 1932, will go on writing new records of greater adventure and more wonderful discovery, and even though the Voyage of High School Life is ending, the Voyage of Real Life has just begun for us.

CONSTANCE CRANDALL

IT was a drizzly, gray, miserable afternoon, and, having nothing better to do, I roamed around the huge, ancient house in which I was established, looking for amusement. As the attic seemed to afford more recreation than any other part of the house, I decided to rummage through some old trunks, which had always interested me, but which I had never had time to examine.

The first trunk I attacked was different from any I had ever seen, but reminded me of descriptions of mariners' trunks about which I had read. I raised the lid, and my nostrils were assailed by a musty, rather salty odor. Evidently its owner had not believed much in orderliness, for the trunk would have served beautifully as Exhibit A in a sermon on "How to muss things up." Odds and ends of every thing stood up in jumbled disarray. Bits of seaweed fell out of the pockets of a heavy, much-worn jacket, which was the first article I pulled out.

Ah! A compass! My interest quickened and I delved in again. An old cap. A sweater. A small spy-glass. And now — breath-takingly lovely, a soft silk scarf — from India, perhaps, or China.

A jarring noise stirred me from my inspection of the silk. "Bother that door-bell!" I muttered, as I hurried to answer it, expecting to slam the door on some peddler. But to my amazement I found Shirley Vines standing on the step, grinning broadly. I hadn't seen her since we left school, and my delight at the meeting was great. She asked if she had interrupted anything important I might be doing. When I explained what my occupation had been prior to her arrival, we went back to the attic.

Diving again into the trunk, my hands touched something smooth and hard. I lifted it out breathlessly, and Shirley and I gazed in astonishment at a crystal ball such as fortune-tellers use.

As I stared at it, it seemed that I could see figures moving in it. I turned to Shirley and asked if she noticed anything unusual.

"Why, no," she replied, "it's just a glass globe."

"But I'm sure I can see things moving in it. They look like people. Why, Shirley, look! Look! If that isn't Lillian Ray, I'm cuckoo!"

Shirley looked as if she might agree with the latter half of my statement, but listened patiently, albeit incredulously, to my description, as part of the Class of 1932 marched by in my crystal.

Lillian Ray is a nurse at the Nevermore Hospital, which was a gift to the city from Helen Cole, who has risen from the position of salesgirl to owner of a large department store. Her manager of floor-walkers is Abraham Simcovitz, whose long legs enable him to cover many miles of ground daily. Lillian is caring at this time for Antonio Marino, who strained the little finger of his left hand while dancing before the King of the Zulu Islands. Tony is enjoying himself immensely, as Julia Dgetluck, Mary Finn, Lillian Garceau, Etta Gluskin, Edith Goodless, and Jenes Gordon are among the student nurses at the hospital. Harry Levine has a position as interne at the same institution, and the dexterity with which he pushed the carts around the lunch-room at Commerce serves him well now, when he is pushing operating tables around the corridors.

Madeline Connor is head instructor and owner of a newly organized school for women. Madeline teaches the art of keeping quiet, always and in all ways, which is becoming increasingly popular among persevering women like Louise Gonnella, Effie Fiskien, Eleanor O'Sullivan, and Sarah Wolfe.

My eyes popped in surprise, for here marching straight toward me in my crystal was Gladys Wood, baton high in air, leading a Salvation Army band, instead of the Drum Corps at Commerce. The band also includes Samuel Norkin, Carl Gibb, Gordon McLellan, and Gordon Barker.

Charlotte Stein, I discovered, is head of a cosmetic establishment with Ida Guazzerotti, Antoinette Santaniello, Charlotte Squier, and Edythe Weber as chief attendants. Charlotte's salon is in the same building as a very exclusive store which specializes in Little Women's clothes. The proprietor is Bernice Wynn. Among the clerks are Edith Ricci, Lillian Rosin, Mary Scaife, and most surprisingly of all, Dorothy Connery, who has finally given in and admits that she is small. Rowena Emery, I find, has revived the old Medicine Show and lectures each evening on How to Stay Thin. Her staff of entertainers includes Joe Maddaloni, Walter Jurkowski, George LaBreche, Bob Sweeney, and Jacob Fagin.

John Wells, appropriately enough, is compiling a history of the World-Beating Depression of 1930-1931 Plus. His staff of assistants includes Stanley Johnson, whose interest in the project is phenomenal, William Stephens, and Sidney Spaner. Lorenz Mead and Harold Menz are running for President and Vice-President on the "Always Study Your Lessons Ticket." Their opponents are Victor Mari and David Schaffer, whose platform reads "Why Study When You Can Bluff Your Way Through?"

Armando Luppi conducts a school for dancing, with the aid of Marion Devlin. Gwendolyn Wright teaches elocution to Elna Erickson and Joyce Reigner, both of whom believe firmly in speaking unceasingly, loudly, and distinctly. Kathleen Cole and Harriet Cosman are happily married to those boy friends we heard so much about back in Commerce. They evince little or no interest in current world events, such as "Will Constance Crandall succeed in her drive to get permission for women to announce radio programs; and if she does, can the audience stand the strain?"

Blanche Deragon, Kathleen Daley, and Helen Farmer have taken the world by storm as "The Crooning Trio." Frances Raverta is known as Jane Addams the second. She has founded a home of charity called Whole House. There she labors for the good of society, with the capable assistance of Ann Guagliardo, Dorothy Goss, and Gemma Ghiandoni.

Harold Durant is a successful radio star, known as "Tiny Jack Minimum." His pianist is Hattie Sadowski. It seems that Harold is involved in a lawsuit against William Wilson, who charges him with alienating the affections of Marian Silver. Harold's lawyer is Olive Sackrison, who always showed such extreme interest in law at school. Helen Sherman conducts a school of physical education. Her pupils number among them Phyllis Wood and Helen Woodard. Vivian Smith's occupation is one of the few which did not surprise me. Vivian is the wealthy proprietor of a very extensive library, in which she employs Ann Newman, Julia Pagani, and Vivian Parsons. Marion O'Connor is in every town two jumps behind Rowena Emery's Medicine Show, with lectures on How to Gain Weight. Her helpers include Josephine Penserosa, Aroxie Michaelian, and Elizabeth Lynch

By this time Shirley was beginning to think that I was the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter. Just then our rapt gaze into the crystal was interrupted by the ringing of the doorbell. Reluctantly we replaced the crystal, which seemed suddenly to have lost its power, and answered the bell. Dominick Bisesti, who is an inventive genius, entered, and after our first greetings we prepared to have tea. It was then that Shirley threw a bombshell into our midst by announcing that she read the tea cups. In response to our requests, she started.

What do I see but Mary Curto as a bell-boy in a New York hotel, having received her start in the Class Day program? As Mary runs around, whom should she bump into but Lee Levine, working as a mannequin, showing the "Good lines for the Stout Woman"? Who should be stopping at this hotel, owned by Ivey Bonnett's husband, a former movie sheik, but Rita Hoar! She is playing the part of Juliet in a famous opera composed by Ludwig Rose and Harry Lancaster, with James Shonak playing opposite her as Romeo. Irene James, while driving in this city of New York, was arrested for speeding at five miles an hour with her cutout open, by Frank Retchin, a noted flatfoot, who immediately began to speak of the good old days when Doris Peck read the minutes — not of the clock in Carl Sandstrom's Ford — but of the class meetings.

Florence McCullah, with the help of Ruth Monica, is running a tea shop where the old maids, members of our class, come and gossip over their tea-cups and exchange confidences. Who should come strolling in but Bernardine Cronin, telling the sad story that she had been working in a school as head dietitian, but had remained only a week, because in two days one hundred pupils had had to be taken to the hospital! Philomena Trongone, talking her head off as usual, trooped into the shop stating that business was bad. They had started a Circulating Library, but the only customers they had had were those who couldn't speak English, and they tearfully replied that English books were the only kind they carried. Mary Ballatore and Ida Levine both solemnly promised to patronize the place if they didn't have to pay for the rental of the books. Margaret McGrath is working in the office of Edward Rathbun, who, finally having his ambitions fulfilled, is in England, doctoring the mentally defective; and many of our school chums are calmly demanding attention. Many of these patients were on the honor roll, too. Virginia Humberston and Catherine Hyfantis, meeting Elizabeth Langone and Delia Valentine, who went to Hollywood [Elizabeth to be near Ben Turpin, and Delia to see Philip Holmes], are bewailing the fact that the only break they got was a "cut" — they are running a private kindergarten in Belchertown.

Many of our friends are far away, both in mind and body. Marion Huntington is a telephone operator on the Fiji Islands, where Alice Kelley and Margaret Landells are investigating a recent invention by James Farnsworth for killing cockroaches by tickling them to death — after they are once captured. Godfrey Pettazzoni and Max Heit are partners in the business of being chiropodists. Louis Searleman is the secretary of Booth Tarkington — he was crazy about him in English 6. Evelyn Kalafut is a Turkish-bath attendant. Nelly Kosnack and Esther Kusnetz, because they have a toothache or such, attend regularly. Elsie Lodi is a dancer in a night club in New Orleans. Charlotte Long is a second Greta Garbo in the XYZ production. She says that Mildred Moore was a second Clara Bow, but now she takes only the part of the farmer's daughter. Dorothy MacQuarrie is the leading dancer at the Turkish court. Her dancing struck right to the heart of the Head Turk. Lucy Martone is down in the Caribbean Seas showing the cannibals how to wear the hair and carry the special air, in this modern age. Lena Macowsky is demonstrating the "Chew good" kisses at the Nukahiva Goody Shop, run by and with Rita Johnson. Yolanda Mazzarella is a second Luther Burbank; she's trying to cultivate an onion without an odor.

Esther Laconti met Harry Kean and told him that she is the very clever secretary of Henry Ford. Harry is the famous jazz composer of the new song, Skylight and Daylight. Everybody is singing it, and Grance Panza, accompanied by Rose Stone, Gussie Tollin, and Priscilla Osterman, dances to the tune among the corridors of Snowstorm College, presided over by Helen Stefanovich.

Tony Colapietro and Earl Randall, so that they won't have to pay for their own gas when they go on their midnight rides, are firemen. Grace Maloney is giving lectures on how to keep thin, stating that she herself never weighed more than ninety pounds. She met Rudolph Simons, the noted orator, who said, "It's the dunces of the world who make it."

Martha Miller has in the Evening Union, the editor of which is Hyman Shumsky, a very much read column on Hints to the Wallflower. Martha herself knows how to become a floorflower instead. Elizabeth Maroney has her pictures in all the magazines, advertising "The Skin You Love To Touch," "Moypolive" Cleansing Cream. That paper is full of news of some of our friends. In big headlines are the words MADELINE MORRISON SWIMS THE CONNECTICUT RIVER and DORIS NIHILL RIGHT BESIDE HER WITH THE WATER ROLL LIFESAVER, greatly recommended by Olga Cabooris, the famous woman lawyer. The second news item is JOSEPH ROMITO IS ELECTED, by one, TREASURER OF THE UNITED STATES. When Corine Wambolt read that, she talked faster than ever, and that's going some, because she is a second Edna Wallace Hopper on the radio; she talks a hundred miles an hour.

Louise Loasby eloped with a Viking and spends most of her time wondering how to keep his hair its original color. Minnie Armstrong is celebrating her twenty-fifth birthday anniversary this April. She has sent invitations to Dorothea Bartels, Alben Carando, Olga Drake, and Rose Lannon. On each of the invitations Minnie wrote what she needed the most, thinking that she was saving them the trouble of wondering what to give her. They will probably worry more now, as Minnie suggested articles that cost not less than twenty-five dollars.

The leaves in the teacups refused to tell any more tales, so Margaret and I thought regretfully of all the people we hadn't heard about; and seeing our dismay, Dominick announced that he had invented a new gadget which surpassed either the crystal or the teacups, because he could see with it any person he desired, instead of taking whatever came along, as we had done. To satisfy our curiosity, he put his invention to work, and here is what we learned.

His instrument registered the High School of Commerce building, and we heard the voice of Dick Putnam, the radio announcer, saying:

Ladies and Gentlemen: It gives me great pleasure to act as your announcer of the Inter-Planetary System for the reunion program of the Class of January, 1932, of the High School of Commerce, in Springfield, Massachusetts.

In this country and in the planets surrounding it, the program has already got under way, so we will immediately enter into the activities. On your screen you see a vast hall. That is all that the televisior will show you, but really a magnificent spectacle is away from the televisior. We are transmitting from the High School of Commerce building itself, located on the same site that the school was from which we, as the Class of January, 1932, graduated. Ah, but that building was a sand pile compared to this magnificent structure. The plans, I am glad to say, were drawn by a world-famous architect, a member of our class. Thomas German is responsible for the plans of this large building. In school, Tom used to draw funny pictures instead of buildings. I wonder how he happened to stumble on drawing buildings.

We are far up in the sky. All the lights down below look like the stars above—just mere pin points of light. Overhead, the constant traffic of air vehicles is at its peak. At times they obliterate the sight of the sky. When we were back in 1932, we spoke of the Empire State building in awed voices. This new high school easily puts that famous structure to shame.

Well, well! Here we have a cablegram from Stafford Hatch. He complains that his wife has left him to take care of the family while she makes a campaign speech on the question of married men's working in industry. But, to add to his misfortune, his television apparatus has gone out of order. He asks me if I won't please describe the various activities and especially the hall from which we are broadcasting. All right, I will do that.

The hall in which we are is on the topmost story, or it would be much better to say that we are on the roof of the Commerce High School. It is a high-ceilinged affair, and hung into the ceiling are curious-looking mooring posts for those who have brought their own rocket planes along. There are so many up there that they look like flies scurrying on the ceiling. At each end are large sliding doors. The interior decorations in this hall were done by Frances Amberlock. On one side of the hall are tablets with names inscribed on them. These names look familiar to me. Let me read them: Alma Angeli, Helen Brown, Inez Bonetti, Rebecca Brown, and Alda Bianchi. All these women played a prominent part in keeping the knowledge they learned in school to themselves. The paintings hung about the wall were painted by Dorothy Albert, who recently painted a portrait of Sitting Bull standing up.

The orchestra here seems to be directed by a person who looks like Elinore Bennett. Yes, it's she. By the way, Elinore Bennett wrote a song entitled, Why Go to School When the Teachers Know Less than We? Well, let's look at the people sitting about the tables. I see William Benetti and his secretary, Lawrence Johnson, arguing over the question of whether or not the great depression of 1929 and 1933 ended October 1931, as one of our former teachers had said. Next I see Stuart Burbee. He just hired Sally Buchheim, the noted C.P.A., to file his income tax report, because he has to devote all his time to watching the growing of potatoes in Maine.

Before we go on, I wish to read to you the messages of those who have been unable to put in their appearance tonight. The first one I have before me is from our former class president, Ralph Bergeron. It reads: "I am sorry that I cannot be present at the reunion tonight, because my theatrical contract forbids me to forego one performance." It will be remembered that Ralph played the icepack in Uncle Tom's Cabin. The next telegram is from John Baird. He states that he is gripped by the inspiration to write another of his poems; and that he cannot afford to stop now, as the result would be dangerous not only to his works, but to his health. His secretary, Elvera Onorato, has sent it with a copy of his most noted poem. Let me read it for you:

"I must go back to school again,
To dear old Commerce High,
To see the noisy lunchroom, and
Students clamoring for food that isn't there."

Here's one from Helen Chernack, who is principal of the High School of Commerce in Los Angeles. It states that she has just left Los Angeles and will be here within the next half hour. She also says that she is bringing her traveling companion, Dorothy Dixon. Here's a close-up of the couples dancing on the floor. First to go by the screen are Winthrop Clark and Hannah Bloom; next, Francis Buscall and Shirley Vines. Francis is a toe-dancer. He's dancing on Shirley's toes. The music has stopped, and now the couples return to their tables. There is a signal which signifies that someone is outside wishing to enter with his plane. The wide doors swing slowly inward, and a small two-seater glides in. It is making its way now, skillfully and artfully guided by its operator, who certainly knows his stuff. He is manoeuvring for position. His plane is hooked, and now we will have to wait to see who it is. While we wait, Gilbert Mueller, that famous opera singer, will render a solo. He recently composed an operatic score entitled If I Could Only Sing.

The solo is now over, and the new arrivals are just entering the doors. Well, they are women! I thought by the manner in which the plane was handled that the pilot was a man. Even the best of us make mistakes. If it isn't Helen Chernack and Harriet Fisher! Roger Chamberland is following them into the hall. You know that he and Anthony Curto just completed a book called Benefits Derived from Attending School. Instead of placing their names underneath the title of the book, as is usually done, they have merely put "By Living Examples."

Here comes Helen Boughton, followed by Philip Gootzit [who still has his curly tresses] and John Fitzgerald, both of whom are still taking typewriting under her tutorship. They simply cannot be separated from her. The three great financiers of the United States — namely, Sidney Spaner, Morris Gordon, and Carl Gibb — are also here. In the financial crisis of 1931 and 1932, they came to the aid of A. H. Smith by proving his theories to his classes. They followed his sound [or unsound] advice — thereby accumulating the untold millions they now possess. [Untold is right]!

Esther Lepovetsky, with Gussie Levine, is running pell-mell to the Little Church Around the Corner to hear Margaret Costello, who is now a minister, preach on the subject, IT WAS ALL DONE IN FUN, SO BE A SPORT — meaning the Class Prophecy.

THREE YEARS IN COMMERCE

Words by HARRY KEAN

TUNE: Moonlight and Roses

Three years in Commerce,	Three years in Commerce,
Three years of study and fun;	Now comes the time to part.
Five other Class Days,	Somewhere there's sorrow
Now comes our happy one;	Deep down in each Senior's heart.
Yet in our parting,	To our advisers
All eyes are moistened with tears;	Our thanks are truly sincere—
We'll ne'er forget	All those who've helped us
The joys of these years.	Through our Senior year.

Three years in Commerce,
School life is nearly through;
But, ere our parting,
This message we sing to you:
Where life may take us,
No matter what fame bestow,
We're true to Commerce
Wherever we go.

Bequests

KNOW all men by these presents that we, the class of February, 1932, of the High School of Commerce, in the city of Springfield, the county of Hampden, and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being in sound mind, memory, and judgment, do hereby make, declare, and publish this, our last will and testament, and do earnestly desire that these, our last requests, be carried out as hereinafter directed;

1. We give and bequeath to our former principal, Mr. Carlos B. Ellis, and to our present principal, Mr. Jerome Burt, our deepest admiration, and our heartiest gratitude for their splendid advice and counsel during our three years in Commerce.

2. To Miss Helene G. Tierney, our faculty adviser, we give and bequeath our sincere appreciation for the wise and thoughtful manner in which she has conducted our class through three very trying years.

3. To Miss Frances C. Blakeman, our assistant faculty adviser, we give our heartfelt thanks for her never-failing coöperation with us at all times.

4. To Mr. G. Donald Melville, Miss Harriet Johnson, and the Misses Marsden, we give our thanks for their aid in the planning of the year book.

5. We give and bequeath to the beloved faculty all the amazing knowledge and startling information which we have furnished them from time to time on our examination papers. We know that much which we have imparted to them in this way must have been entirely new to them, as well as to all teachers and students everywhere. However, we give the faculty the exclusive rights to use this knowledge in their quest for fame in the teaching world.

6. To the Freshman Class, we leave any overlooked piece of gum we may have left resting on the underside of desks, banisters, assembly seats, or any other likely or unlikely place. We have sometimes had to rid ourselves of them in too much haste to be able to identify them properly upon returning to seek them out.

7. We leave to the class of June, 1932, all the privileges that we have had as seniors and hope that they will use them with the dignity becoming seniors.

8. Our president, Ralph Bergeron, leaves this gavel to Raymond Riani, president of the XIIB class.

9. The dashing Bill LaBroad leaves this book, "How to Flirt Over a Lunch-room Counter," to that shy violet, Kenneth Van Wart.

10. Dorothy Dixon and Anne Newman, the gum chewing twins, leave their ability to get away with this practice in Miss Parker's salesmanship class, to Mae Rosso.

11. The American History fiend, John Wells, leaves his ability to win the medal to Raymond Riani.

12. Mary Curto leaves this set of instructions on how to grow tall to Lloyd Hartley, who sadly needs the advice.

13. Rita Hoar, the girl with the magic pencil, leaves her artistic ability to Beatrice Randall.

14. We leave this megaphone to Mr. G. Donald Melville, so that in the future at rallies, the pupils in the back of the Assembly may hear his rather weak voice.

15. Doris Peck leaves her ability to play Chopin, Beethoven, Bach, and the great Irving Berlin to Eunice Ford.

16. "Turk" Curto finally consented to part with some of his boundless pep and ambition. He leaves a sixteenth of it to Donald Thompson.

17. Hyman Shumsky leaves this pair of scissors to Hyman Neigher so that he need no longer bother walking that dreaded distance to the barber.

18. Stuart Burbee leaves this advice on "How to Sleep Properly in Class" to that wide awake individual, John Conway.

19. A certain member of Mr. Campbell's Stenography 4 class leaves him this joke book so that in the future he will stop picking on the Scotch.

20. Thomas Gorman very thoughtfully leaves this pencil and eraser to Re McCarthy, with the hope that with their help she will get her office routine done correctly and on time.

21. Mildred Moore leaves her giggle to anyone who thinks his vocal cords are equal to the task.

22. To the Gils twins, Ludwig "Red" Rose leaves his flaming locks to be divided equally between them.

23. Mr. Shipway's home room leaves him this tie, already tied, with the hope that this will enable him to get to school on time in the morning.

24. The money-collecting hound, Joseph Romito, leaves his ability in this respect to Annette Messier.

25. Bob Sweeney leaves this rubber stamp with the letter A on it, to Mr. A. H. Smith for him to stamp on his tests, instead of the usual B, meaning bologna.

26. Victor Mari leaves this challenge to Bob Moriarty: to try to stay in school as long as he has.

27. We wish the General Organization, that splendid plan of Mr. Burt's, all the success in the world.

28. Carl Sandstrom, the dashing Romeo, leaves his parking place out front, to any underclassman who has the nerve to put such a piece of junk in front of the school.

29. Members of Room 206 leave this alarm clock to Mr. Perkins so that he will get up in the morning in time to go through his usual practice of yawning before he gets to school.

30. The former members of Room 123 sincerely hope that sometime during Mr. Pease's career of teaching at our school, he will be able to see at least one of his home room classes through the entire three years of their high school life.

All the rest and residue of our property, whatsoever and wheresoever, of what nature, kind, and quality soever it may be, and not herein disposed of, we give and bequeath to our beloved principal, for his use and benefit absolutely, to be disposed of for the good of the coming classes as he may see fit.

And we do hereby constitute and appoint the said principal, Mr. Jerome Burt, sole executor of this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof, we, the class of January 1932, the testators, have to this, our will, set our hands and seal this 13th day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one.

Farewell, Dear Old Commerce

Words by HELEN COHEN

Farewell, dear old Commerce.

You've been so near our hearts;

After three short years here,

We shall have to part.

As Freshies we came to you,

So frightened and so green;

Now, at last we're Seniors —

Confident, serene.

CHORUS

Commerce — right from the start.

You aided us in learning;

Commerce — you've done your part.

Now we must be going.

Adieu, now, dear old High School,

We've been so happy here;

But Life is calling, so —

Best wishes and good cheer.

Ye Past

Dawn broke slowly over the Wilbraham Mountains, revealing in the valley below a line of figures, all turning their faces toward a central point, a large, imposing group of wigwams. Closer scrutiny confirmed all suspicions — these were the Indians from the Land of Junior High.

It was the year 1929, and these savages, having exhausted the resources of their former dwelling, came to the Commerce village in search of food for thought and intellectual venison.

Their first day with the new tribe was one of confusion and excitement. Stolid as they were, this new situation made them wander about like lost sheep, as they looked for their assigned tepees, and heard the strange tales of passes, initiation tortures, and things unseen. However, after the first month, the redskins settled down to business, counting the minutes until time for each mid-day meal, when an uproarious pow-wow shook the walls of their dwelling.

During the Indian summer, the older members of the Commerce tribe held a big council meeting for the newcomers, which gave all a chance to become better acquainted with the village, Heap Big Chief Ellis, and the other chiefs and princesses who distributed the long-sought food for thought and intellectual venison.

Winter came, bringing with it the annual custom of electing young rulers of the tribe. Our friends chose these leaders:

President, RAYMOND RIANI

Vice-President JOHN DRISCOLL

Secretary DORIS HASTINGS

Treasurer ANNETTE MESSIER

Auditor ETHEL BROAD

Newly organized, the group held a pow-wow and decided to have a ceremonial dance in the spring. This proved to be entertaining for all, with the old chiefs watching the young braves and maidens.

At this time, the great Chief Ellis resigned from his position. He was greatly esteemed in the hearts of the Indians, and will never be forgotten. The new leader, Heap Big Chief Burt, from a Michigan tribe, soon became the friend of every redskin, and faithfully filled his position.

In the second Indian summer, the group adopted the title of "Juniors", and held themselves erect and dignified as incoming tribes of "Freshmen" inquired as to their identity. The fall ceremonial was a little more formal than the first one.

The ancient custom of inviting the oldest members of a neighboring tribe was observed at Christmas. Gifts were distributed to the guests and a play was given for their entertainment.

The annual winter contest for leadership was carried on, and the winners were as follows:

	President, JOHN DRISCOLL
Vice-President	MATTHEW GRIMALDI	Secretary RUTH L. BRENNER
Treasurer	ANNETTE MESSIER	Auditor IRENE LEMOINE

The planting season arrived, and with it came the best ceremonial dance they had ever held. With war paint and feathers, they made a dazzling display, and danced until the moon was high in the heavens.

Fall — at last the Indians were almost at their goal — they could call themselves "Seniors", and were more stolid than ever. The universe was theirs. It was now their turn to call a council meeting for new additions to the tribe, and they did so with a flourish! Then came the last ceremony they would have in the Commerce village, the most successful dance of all.

Later, a special contest was held, so that the new leaders would have ample time to prepare for the last farewells. Few were changed, and those in power were

	President, RAYMOND RIANI
Vice-President	RUTH P. WELCH	Secretary RUTH L. BRENNER
Treasurer	ANNETTE MESSIER	Auditor IRENE LEMOINE

As it was customary to have pictures of themselves made to give to friends, the Indians went in their brightest war paint to the tribe's selected artist, and for weeks their groans and shouts of laughter at the results re-echoed through the village.

Now, anxiously awaiting the last few glorious pow-wows, including the great Feast and the Graduation Council, the Indians lingered about the familiar grounds wishing the end were not so near, and, inspired by the happy days spent in the Commerce abode, looking forward to a wonderful future.

Ye Future

1952! How fast the time flies! It seems only a year or two since we left high school, but after looking in the mirror we notice that there is a decided change, from the face in the mirror and the class pictures on the sideboard.

1952, being the twentieth anniversary of our graduation, and the tenth anniversary of our huge success in business, we decided to take a pleasure trip in order to recover from the nervous strain wrought upon us by three years of tests and homework in Commerce. Our business, you say? Why, you don't mean to tell us that you haven't heard of the Lamborghini, Zirkin, and Prior Finance Corporation? We, that is Wanda Lamborghini, Dorothy Zirkin, and James Prior, after leaving our old Alma Mater felt it our duty to start a finance corporation to help the country solve the mystery of depression. In about five years our corporation had already made a name for itself as the largest and best in the universe.

Well, to get back to our trip. We sailed last month, Solar 15, 1952. Of course you all know that they have changed the twelve month calendar to thirteen, as was being discussed when we were still youngsters in school. The ship we sailed on? Well, you don't think we would reserve any other than the S. S. Burt, do you?

At last we started! It was certainly a relief to be on our way after all the rushing and tearful good-byes were said. We didn't get around the ship very much the first day, because the rolling and pitching of the sea affected us; in other words, we had a short spell of sea-sickness.

After luncheon that afternoon, whom should we see strolling along the deck but those perfect love-birds, Russell Streeter and Audrey St. Jacques, who, by the way, in order to form a more perfect union and insure domestic tranquillity were married. Looking across the salon, we saw the back of a man of monstrous proportions and when he turned around, believe it or not, it was Robert Black, who probably had decided that his mission in life was to make food manufacturers prosperous. After lunch we were pleasantly surprised to meet the ship's captain, Archie Knox, who, if you remember correctly, was always a lover of waves [page Lorraine Flore]; and Ralph Tremonti, the ship's doctor; and his ever faithful nurse and assistant, Julia Krason.

The next day while having our stroll along the deck, we came in contact with a group of ladies headed by Josephine Zini. These women represent a society known as the Depressed Wives' Association. Among their ranks are Mrs. Louis Caporale, or as we knew her, Marie Merta; Mrs. Russell Parker, who used to be Evangeline Goyette; Mrs. Ray Kelly, formerly known as Doris Hastings; and last but not least of course, Mrs. Ray Nelson, who, twenty years ago was Alma Leveillee.

While at dinner in the evening we were entertained by vocal solos given by Allan Mills, now the famous baritone of the Metropolitan Opera House. He has been rapidly gaining the popularity that Caruso had in his time enjoyed. Eunice Ford has helped him greatly to climb the ladder of fame, by her soulful playing of the piano. While our minds turn to the subject of music, we would like to mention that Ida Funt, Emma Kaplan, Joe Strong, Si Skolnick, and Alfred Crowe all have gained great distinction in the musical field.

Near the close of the meal, our attention was attracted by a commotion at the other end of the table where we noticed Renzo Cardosi making an unsuccessful attempt at juggling three plates at a time. Poor Renzo, will he never learn?

On our third night out we happened to see Captain Knox running to the main deck followed by the crew, Edwin Lombard, George Parker, and Edward Morrissey. Archie began by saying, "Now don't be alarmed, folks. Nothing very serious has happened, but the ship has sprung a leak and—" but that was as far as he got. Soon the ship was a confusion of people rushing for the nearest life boats.

In about fifteen minutes the ship was deserted and the smaller boats were being rowed in the direction of a dark object about a mile away. Drawing nearer, we noticed to our great amazement, that it was an island, and an inhabited one, too. How did we know it was inhabited? Well, we could tell by the outline of tall skyscrapers, and also by the many bright lights. You can imagine our feelings when we entered the little bay and saw a very large statue of Mercury at the entrance of the pier. This reminded us of the old statue in the library, of course. It seemed very strange to us to find a seemingly highly civilized island in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, but we soon forgot all our wonderings in our yearning for a nice soft feather bed. The Captain gave orders here and there, but no one was listening to him.

As we drew near the end of the pier we noticed a man who looked like a watchman. This person turned out to be one, and it also happened to be Stewart Robbins. He came up to us and wanted to know the reason for our intrusion on his island. George Parker, who acted as spokesman for the group, tried to summarize our catastrophe. When Robbins recognized us as old school mates, he gave us directions to the nearest hotel. We were even more surprised to find another Commertite acting as the clerk: Eleanor Broughton. You can easily see that we had been in a state of suspense all day, but as we were going toward the elevator, we were almost overwhelmed by the sight we saw. Marching toward us, to assist us, we saw ten beautifully arrayed bell-hops. The leader was June Schrade. She was followed by Esther LeBoeuf, Clara Feld, Winifred Dobles, Venice Sullivan, Florence Neilon, Catherine Nicoll, Helen Parrott, Dorothy Whiting, and Evelyn Thresher. We were shown to our rooms, the best in the house, of course, and made comfortable for the night.

The next morning as we entered the salon, we seemed to recognize the waitresses that were flitting around the room. Jimmie walked up to the nearest one, and when she turned around whom should we see but Ethel Broad! A few minutes were spent in reminiscing and then some one exclaimed, "Say, Ethel, how does it happen that every person we have met so far on this island is an old grad of 1932?"

"Well," she laughed, "you three were so busy in your attempt to relieve the country of depressions that most of the class decided to emigrate and find a Utopia where depression should be submerged, and gaiety, merriment, and prosperity should reign."

We took up the menu and the first item we noticed was Devine's Crinkly Cracker, originated by Donald Devine. This was followed by ham and eggs, as inseparable as Olga and Bertha Gils. We decided that this was sufficient, for we wanted to do a great deal of exploring the first day. The first place we wandered to in our quest of adventure was to the stadium. The admittance fee was two pins, this being a Utopian island, you see, and money there being an unnecessary item. We entered and found ourselves in the midst of an exciting game between the Utopian Daisies headed by such stars as Harvey Pepin, Ralph Tremonti, Ray Burnett, Leo Diotalevi, Agopios Lemanis, and Bob Moriarty. The other team was the Utopian Brutes, captained by "Speedy" Rosso and assisted by Mary Kostor, Alice Lane, Mildred Campanella, Vivian Wallace, Phyllis Blackmer, and Helen Hadelor. The game was further stimulated by the efforts of Howard Fay as chief cheerleader. Score — 32 - 0!! In favor of the Brutes!!

As we were leaving the stadium, we heard hurried footsteps in back of us. Someone called out quickly, "Wanda! Dot! Jimmie!" We turned around quickly and found Ruth Welch, the former Vice-President of our class. We exclaimed our delight at seeing her, and she informed us that she would act as our guide in our future wanderings around the isle. We found later that Ruth had been selected as chief guide because of her sweetness and ability to remain sweet no matter what the occasion or how trying the time.

We were walking theatre bound, when we saw coming up the street, an Austin which apparently had difficulty in making its way, because of the throngs that surrounded it. We turned to Ruth in amazement, asked her what the cause of the excitement was, and were told that it was the Mayor of Utopia, Ray Riani, accompanied by his very capable secretary, Ruth Brenner, in the car.

"Hm, they're certainly carrying out their natural talent," said Dot.

The crowds dispersed and we continued on our way to the theatre. Upon our arrival there, we were ushered into the choicest seats in the house by a smiling Mildred Coleman, who recognized us immediately. She told us that she and Mildred Shaker were now hostesses of the theatre. Apparently, the heroine of the picture was Mabel Felio, and opposite her was playing the romantic John Chwalek. The accompanying picture was a melodrama, entitled Life's Darkest Moment, and had for its stars, the beautiful tragedienne, Jeannette Kimball, and the equally tragic George Chevrier. It had a very depressing effect upon the audience, as was evidenced by the many sniffles and sobs heard around the building.

The next feature on the program was a vaudeville act. Lois Malone tripped on the stage bearing a sign which said: Lois Malone and Her Nine Buttercups. Following Lois, the afore-mentioned buttercups tripped daintily in on their toes. The troupe consisted of Erma Landry, Bertha Porter, Verna Lust, Wilma Perry, Ruth Lyons, Dorothy Hathaway, Hilda Hatch, Ruth Gildersleeve, and Mary Mycofsky. Oh, what a chorus! Such grace and daintiness as we had never seen before!

The program was closed with a vocal selection by Minnie Vivian, a noted "Blues Singer." She was accompanied by Martha Orloff at the piano.

On the way back to the hotel we met Laurence Brundrett wheeling a baby carriage. Hanging on his arm and gazing fervently into his eyes was Irene Lemoine. We were rather surprised to see this, because when we were in high school Irene was very shy and reserved. We congratulated the couple and passed on.

As we were passing by a department store, we decided to go in and buy a package of pins for our carfare home. We were not acquainted with the store so we walked up to the perfume counter to inquire. Robert Kampfer [believe it or not], the head of this department, gave us the directions to the pin counter. As we wound our way through the aisles in search of our counter, we came upon a crowd of rapt listeners engrossed in Professor Nathan Jacobson's lecture on "Are Whistlers Really Morons?" Nathan, you see, is still pondering upon this question.

The pin counter at last! Marion Braica, the chief pinner, sold us our pins and gave us some tickets to the grand masquerade which was to be held that evening at the Hotel Flynn-Halligan. As it was nearing the time for the masquerade we decided to go directly to the hotel and dress.

Jimmie decided to go as Napoleon; Dot as Josephine; Wanda after her namesake, Skippy; and Ruth as Martha Washington. When we arrived there, we were admitted by a red devil whose earthly position is Norman Clark.

In the course of the evening we met Little Boy Blue, Wilburt Dionne, dancing with Annette Messier as Little Bo Peep. Mother Goose was portrayed by Jennie Bernard. The chief clown, among the many that were there, was Matthew Grimaldi. Abraham Lincoln was represented by Neill Donovan, who in order to make it more realistic insisted upon reciting the Gettysburg address. Helen Carney, Faith Clifford, and Marie Pulvirenti were dressed as three milk maids. Helen Cohen and Arthur Kern portrayed to perfection the balcony scene of Romeo and Juliet. David Geller came dressed in a sheet. Apparently David was trying to imitate Ghandi, another noted thinker. To close the program, a chorus composed of Beulah Anderson, Jeannette Babcock, Mildred Blacker, Ann Bletzer, Marion Braman, Peg Cheney, Anita Day, Violet Desilets, and Anita Ferioli danced two numbers: "The Commerce Walker" and the "Halligan-Flynnng."

After a refreshing sleep that night we were ready for further adventure. No town would be complete without a zoo, of course, so we decided to visit it that morning. The first building we entered was the lion's den. We were indeed surprised to find that the chief trainers were none other than Nellie Grygorowicz and Ellen Johnson! In the course of our wandering, we found that the keeper of the monkeys was Frank Sarno, and the snake charmer was Dorothy Kletsy. The elephants were controlled by Helen Martin. As our interest in the zoo waned, however, we said good-bye to our friends and returned to the hotel.

At dinner that night, we overheard a conversation to the effect that a ship had landed and was leaving the next day for New York. After all, our financial interests must not be neglected, so we made ready to leave. The next morning, after promising to return promptly and frequently, we sailed for home.

JAMES PRIOR

Ye Document

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that we, the June class of Commerce High School, city of Springfield, county of Hampden, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being in full and complete possession of our faculties of mind, yet, considering the uncertainty of our lives and to the end that we may leave the High School of Commerce in good standing, do hereby declare, publish, and assert this to be our last will and testament; and do earnestly desire, that these, our last requests, be carried out as herein directed:

First. To our two principals, Carlos B. Ellis and Jerome Burt, we bequeath our sincere thanks and deepest gratitude for their friendly cooperation and helpful suggestions during the past three years.

Second. To the entire faculty, we leave our warmest appreciation and heartfelt thanks for their congenial attitude and patient endeavor to let us share with them their vast knowledge.

Third. To Miss Alice Halligan, Miss Helen Flynn, and Mr. Gilbert Walker, we leave our deepest appreciation for their untiring assistance during the past six semesters.

Fourth. To Mr. Gilbert A. Walker, we leave this hammer, pulley, and string with which to control his law classes.

Fifth. To Miss Alice Halligan, we leave this book on parliamentary procedure to settle all disputes and controversy in future class meetings.

Sixth. To the present XIIB Class, we leave our seats in the assembly hall, because we have no further need of them.

Seventh. Wanda Lamborghini leaves her delicate mannerisms and graceful ways to Donald Jalbert.

Eighth. Ruth Brenner leaves her beloved doll which she so often weeps over, to any undergraduate who wishes to hark back to her childhood days.

Ninth. Laurence Brundrett bequeathes these pamphlets by Arthur Murray, as his secret to success in dancing, to Charles Manning so that he may also profit from them.

Tenth. Ray Riani, our retiring president, leaves this well worn gavel to the present XIIB president, Edwin Hellyar.

Eleventh. James Prior leaves his trim figure and wavy hair to Graham Rogers.

Twelfth. We bequeath this bottle of hair tonic to Mr. Will Macalpine, so that he may induce some kind of vegetation to grow on the top of his head.

Thirteenth. To Miss Catherine Harris, we leave this movie magazine so that she may choose from it, her future mate.

Fourteenth. Evelyn Thresher, the girl with the come-hither look in her eyes, leaves her ability to bewitch the males, to any undergraduate who feels capable of using it.

Fifteenth. To Miss Genieve Allen, we leave this pamphlet on the proper use of English, to help her conduct future speech classes.

Sixteenth. Tyler Allen leaves to Al Brown this recipe on keeping slim, so that he will not gain any excessive avoirdupois.

Seventeenth. George George leaves the sincere hope that Joseph Joseph does not have so much trouble with his name as he has had.

Eighteenth. V. Tallman leaves to her cousin Anna Wiseman, this small jar of freckle cream in hopes that she will endeavor to make use of it in the near future.

In testimony whereof, we, the June Class of 1932, have set our hand and seal unto this, our last will and testament, written on this fifteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two, at the High School of Commerce, in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Bright days that are swiftly passing,
Happy days that hurry by,
Those glad free hours of school life,
That we part from with a sigh,
Tedious classes, sports, and laughter,
Close to our hearts that lie,
Bind with loyalty and friendship,
Each of us to Commerce High!

CHORUS

Commerce-Commerce-Commerce-Commerce—
Commerce-Commerce-Commerce-Commerce—
We must leave our school for life's work,
To the call we gladly go,
And reveal in the duties set us,
All that to our school we owe,
With Integrity our watchword,
And Industry our guide,
Let our lives bring honor ever,
To our dear old Commerce High!

Since the last edition of Caduceus, the Girls' Athletic Association has adopted a new system of awarding letters. The main difference between the two systems is that the newer one completely abolishes the use of the minor letter as an award and in its place, numerals are used.

The major letter is awarded to those who have attained a position on any of the following teams:

First hockey team
First soccer team
Champion basketball team

The major letter is also awarded to those who have earned three sets of numerals. The winner of the tennis tournament also receives a major letter.

Numerals are awarded to those who have attained a position on any of the following teams:

Second hockey team
Second soccer team
Class basketball team

Numerals are also awarded to those who have been successful squad leaders during their class gym. period. The runner-up in the tennis tournament also receives a set of numerals.

Championships Without Publicity!

Once again our girls' hockey and soccer teams have won their respective championships. The 1931 teams have merely continued successes of former Crimson aggregations. Since the inception of girls' interschool sports, the High School of Commerce girls have won six soccer, five hockey, and three swimming titles.

What is more, they have done all this without the help of "pep" rallies. The grandstands or bleachers have not been jammed full of spectators singing and cheering the maidens in victory and defeat. Neither have the practice sessions been crowded with enthusiastic alumnae telling the coaches how it was done in the "Gay Nineties" or before the War. The very lack of publicity may be, perhaps, the reason for the success.

The recreational activities of the girls are mainly intramural. In the fall the classes have their fill of soccer and field hockey on the Armory grounds, while the same place, in the spring, is the scene of baseball and volley ball. During both the fall and spring, there are tennis tournaments. In the winter, basketball holds sway in addition to regular gymnasium classes. At the end of the season an interclass basketball tournament is played, and an annual Gym. Meet takes place. Instruction in other recreational activities, particularly swimming is also available. For a while there was interschool competition, but lack of facilities made this inadvisable.

Basketball

HAROLD W. JONES, Coach

CHARLES DEMCHUCK, Captain

Led by Charlie Demchuck, one of the best guards among players in Springfield schools, the Commerce basketball team ran up a nine game winning streak, became a co-holder of the Interschool and City Titles, and was rated among the first five teams in the valley standings in the best season a Crimson quintet has had since 1928. In his second year as coach of the hoop squad, Hal Jones brought forth a team that won eleven games and lost three, a record that stands in sharp contrast to that of the year before.

The initial game of the year found Hal Jones's charges at Easthampton where the hosts were defeated, 13 to 11, when Sam Norkin, substitute guard, outwitted his man and scored a basket with ten seconds left to play. Tech. gave the Crimson a lot of trouble in the first attack at the Interschool Titles, but timely counters by Carl Demchuck found the Commerce team on top, 24 to 20. No game of the whole high school season could cope with the Trade game. With the score standing, 16 to 12, in Trade's favor, and thirty seconds to play, Captain Charlie Demchuck tossed in two sensational long-distance hoops to tie the score and throw the game into an overtime period. A minute had hardly passed in the extra session, when Charlie sent another long shot through the netting to give the Crimson the tilt. Ludlow gave Commerce a lot of trouble during the early minutes of the next game, but soon Hy Neigher and Carl Demchuck located the hoop, and after a barrage of good shots, the game ended at 32 to 17. Rockville gave Commerce no trouble in the next game, and the Springfield five won easily, 51 to 17, with Charlie Demchuck and Hy Neigher doing a bulk of the scoring.

The sixth straight victory came at the expense of Turners Falls, 27 to 19. Charlie and Carl Demchuck scored ten points apiece for the Crimson, while Fran Riel was the visitors' star. Abe Feldman, understudy at center, caught the eye of many sport critics in the game with Tech. when he led the Commerce five to a 23 - 18 victory. Joe Tomczak turned around and showed his wares in the next game with Turners Falls, when he scored six baskets as the Crimson won, 34 to 25. After nine victories, the Commerce five tasted defeat for the first time when Trade pulled a golden opportunity out of the hands of the team by winning, 19 to 14. Had Commerce won this game, it would have been undisputed Interschool and City Champions. Holyoke found the Crimson in their slump and tacked the second defeat of the season on to them, 20 to 18. Joe Tomczak was the shining light for the Crimson. Hal Jones's charges came out of the slump in the least expected way, against Agawam, 14 to 13, without the services of Captain Demchuck, but Sam Norkin carried on gloriously for him. It was his long shot that gave the Commerce boys lead, and it was Mike Demchuck's twin-counter that settled the issue while the Agawam team was trying to rally. Commerce reopened basketball activities with Cathedral once more after five years of non-combat. The purple were no match for the Crimson, who won, 29 to 21. Charlie Demchuck and Sam Norkin excelled for the winning team. The last game of the season was a complete upset. Commerce completely outclassed Rockville in the first encounter, but the Nutmeg quintet turned around and nosed out the Crimson, 25 to 23. Lefty Cohen and Hy Neigher played well for the losing five.

Five Commerce men were chosen on the All-City Teams. Charlie Demchuck copped a guard berth on the Union's five while James Shonak, Joseph Tomczak and Samuel Norkin were chosen to the second team of the same paper. The Republican gave Demchuck and Norkin first team positions, while Hy Neigher and Tomczak were selected for the second team.

BASEBALL

In spite of the poor showing of the Commerce baseball team during the season, it showed a marked improvement in results and statistics over the teams of the previous four years. The Crimson won but two games in 1927, three games each in 1928, 1929, and 1930. This year's squad won four games, but lost eight. However, a close check-up of the scores will reveal that five of the losses were by small margins.

Commerce opened the season very auspiciously when it trounced Ludlow. Then the team lost three successive games to St. Thomas Seminary, Ludlow, and Holyoke. The Crimson revived to beat Trade, the City Champions. Lloyd Wands was driven from the mound, and Commerce proceeded to garner the winning runs from Art Murphy. Encouraged by the Trade victory, the Crimson then traveled to Holyoke where it unleashed all its batting fury and trounced the Paper Towners. The Springfield lads collected seventeen hits, with Hy Neigher getting four, a home run, a double and two singles. The next two games were dropped to Tech by close scores, although Skeeber's batting featured. Commerce went into another hitting spree in the next game when it routed the Central nine. The base stealing of Hy Neigher, with six to his credit, was the most notable accomplishment of the Crimson players. The remaining games were losses to Trade, Central, and Cathedral. Commerce lost through the good pitching by Art Murphy, and incidentally the city title went to Trade. Much chagrined by the previous defeat, Central turned around and trounced the Crimson decisively. The final game was a real thriller. George Coffey, Purple pitcher, had kept Commerce from scoring for eight innings, but wilted in the ninth canto and allowed four runners to cross the plate. However, he recovered in time to stem the rally with the tying and winning runs on bases.

Four Commerce men were chosen for the All-City teams. The Union selected Hy Neigher for first base, Harry Skeeber for second base, Joe Kawa for third base, and Mitchell Ankiewicz for left field. Israel Cohen, unofficial batting leader, made right field for the second team. The Republican also picked Skeeber and Kawa for their respective positions, while Neigher and Ankiewicz made the second team. Skeeber was chosen mythical captain of the teams. Victorious as the opponents were, they made but two more hits than Commerce. The Crimson made 76 runs on 109 hits and batted .267, while the adversaries collected 111 hits and scored 86 runs.

FOOTBALL

Led by Harvey Pepin, one of the best ball carriers local grid fans have seen in recent years, the Commerce football team ended a very good season despite its one victory, four losses, and two ties. Three of the defeats were "heart breakers," two of which would have been averted if the extra points had been scored.

The only real loss came at the hands of the powerful Hartford Public High in the first game, by 18 to 6. Pepin was the whole show for the Springfield combine and scored the Crimson's lone touchdown. In the next game, Worcester Classical was battled to a scoreless standstill. Inability to convert the extra points cost the Crimson the following two games. Turners Falls nosed out Commerce by 7 to 6, with Harvey Pepin again crossing the registering line. Trade won the next game by 14 to 12, with Campagna and Tremonti scoring for Commerce. The Central game was won 12 to 0. Harvey Pepin contributed several important runs while Joe Tomczak and Vic Mari shone in the line. The first touchdown was scored when Anthony Curto recovered a blocked kick behind the goal line. Later in the same period, Libby Campagna slid through center for the other score. Commerce played well to hold Cathedral, City Champs, to a 6 to 6 tie. Pepin scored the first touchdown against the Purple since 1926 when Red Greenberg broke loose. Joe Tomczak and Bob Moriarty excelled in the line. The last game was lost to Tech, Interschool Champs, 13 to 7. The game had an Orange flavor, until the last period, when the Crimson, led by Pepin, began an advance on the Tech goal line that was successful. Pepin crossed the last white stripe and Paul Quinn plunged through center for the only extra point of the season. The Crimson, through the virtue of good forward passes by Al Appleman, threatened continually, but the game ended before any damage could be done to Tech's interschool title.

Three Commerce men were chosen on the all-City Teams of both newspapers: Joe Tomczak, Vic Mari and Harvey Pepin, mythical team captain. Incidentally Pepin was chosen of the All-Valley, Tomczak was picked for the second team and Mari was given honorable mention. Bob Moriarty, Liborio Campagna, and Herb Montebello made the All-City second teams. All the above mentioned boys and Paul Quinn were the Commerce men playing on the local All-Local High School Eleven in a charity game. The Crimson tallied 49 points during the season while the opponents made only nine more, 58. The leading scorers were Pepin with 24 points and Campagna with 12 points.

SOCCKER

Not since the season of 1928, had the followers of the Commerce soccer teams seen as good a squad as the one which gamboled up and down the fields this year. The team won one game, tied two, and lost seven. After losing twenty consecutive games over a period of three years, the Crimson finally broke into the win-column and shaded Monson by a 2 to 1 score. The outstanding Crimson players were William LaBroad, Edward O'Day, Godfrey Pettazzoni, Kenneth Rees, and Raymond Riani.

HOCKEY

In the 1932 ice-hockey squad there were six veterans. Harvey Pepin and Eugene Sweeney were the defense men from last year's sextet, while Lloyd Hartley, William LaBroad, Francis O'Connor, and Edmund Kuehn were forwards. Although not winning any games, the Crimson sextet played two tie games with Trade and one with Central. In the West Springfield game, playing against one of the best teams in Western Massachusetts, Commerce held them 3 to 2, with Lloyd Hartley scoring both goals.

The leading scorer was William LaBroad and the best players included Captain LaBroad, Walter O'Brien, and Francis O'Connor.

Crew, 1931

MR. PHILIP FOX, Coach

GEORGE BURRIDGE, Captain [Spring]

GEORGE RUSSELL, Captain [Fall]

The past year found the Commerce crew participating in two interschool races. In spring, the Crimson crossed the finish line in fourth place. The fall regatta found the crew sporting the best eight Commerce has had for a good many years. This crew plowed through the choppy Connecticut River to cross the line just behind Trade, the winner.

*Frank Di Santi displayed spirit, strength, and reliability, when he took a sick member's place in the race. Frank was out for football and had no practice with the crew, but when he was asked, on the afternoon of the race, to make the substitution, there was no second bidding. Di Santi deserves much credit for this exhibition of school spirit.

A Matter of Ethics

For many years, high school year-books have been partially financed by the "contributions" of local merchants and well-wishers under the heading of advertising. The value of this "advertising", as printed, has been questioned and we would like to change matters.

There is no advertising section, as such, in this volume. The people and concerns listed below have helped us doubly this year. They have become patrons of the book, and have helped us save money because we do not need extra pages for advertising.

Now we believe that the readers of this book will see to it that the patrons benefit more this year than they did under the old plan.

Help them when they appeal to you for consideration of their merchandise and other wares. Patronize them and make them glad they helped us.
